THE PARK NEXT DOOR

How Australia's 8 capital city councils share out parks, play spaces and places to gather

[INTRO]

How to read this page
- Playground
- Toilet in park
- BBQ
- Dog off-leash area
- Drinking fountain
- Council park land

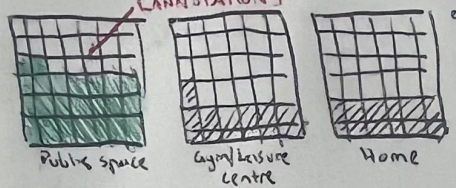

Green: council parks and facilities
Red: Key findings / annotations
Blue: interaction

Why the park next door matters

[KEY FINDING]

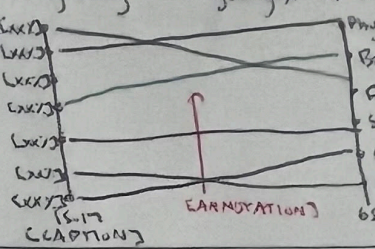

Where & why active Australians move

Where active Australians exercise

[CAPTION]

Why they move: younger vs older adults

[CAPTION]

Eight capitals, eight park networks

[KEY FINDING]

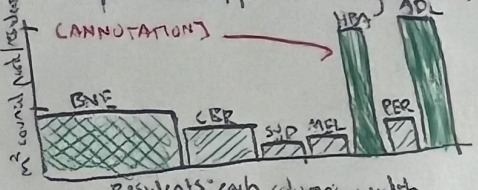

How much park land each capital city looks after, and for how many people

Council park land in eight capitals

[CAPTION]

Park land per resident, for how many residents

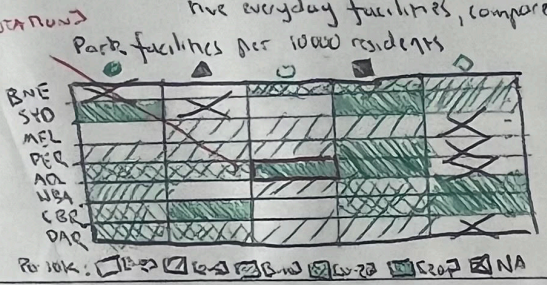

Residents; each column's width

[CAPTION]

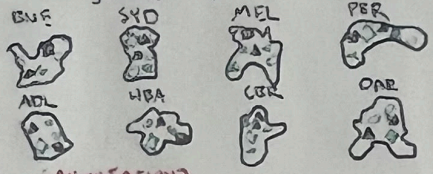

What's in the park?

[KEY FINDING]

Five everyday facilities, compared fairly per 10,000 residents

Every mapped park facility

[ANNOTATION]

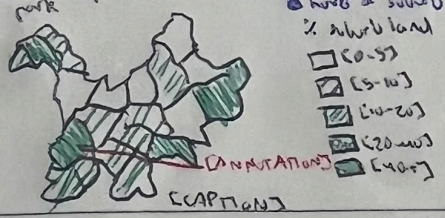

[CAPTION]

Up close: Brisbane, Australia's biggest council

[KEY FINDING]

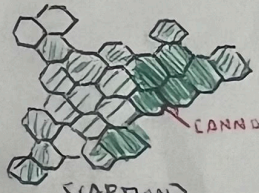

Where the council's parks sit, and where facilities cluster

Share of each suburb that is council park

[CAPTION]

Park facilities within reach

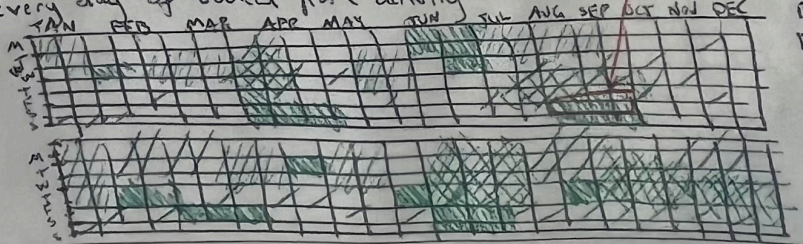

[CAPTION]

When Brisbane books its parks

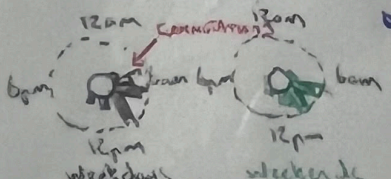

[KEY FINDING]

Every day of booked park activity

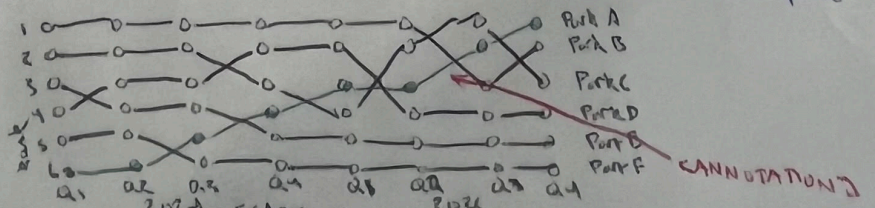

[CAPTION]

Booked activity by hour of day

[CAPTION]

Brisbane's most booked parks, quarter by quarter

[CAPTION]

What it all adds up to

[TAKEAWAY]

[TAKEAWAY]

[TAKEAWAY]

Andrew Nguyen
32477562
Studio 1
9/10/26